Two Are One
In marriage only when there is equality of health as well as affection. Affection may be the basis of unity in marriage, but the superstructure depends largely on the womanly health. When the wife is tormented with backache, distressed by headache, and racked by nervousness, she has no ambition for exercise or pleasure.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It cures headache, backache, and other womanly ills by curing the diseases of the womanly organism which cause them. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Weak and sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and is answered by letter. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" does so to gain the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines. His profit is your loss, therefore accept no substitute.

"My wife commenced to complain twenty years ago," writes Lewis A. Miller, ex-Chief of Police, 33 Prospect Street, Westport, Pa. "We have tried the skill of twelve different doctors. She took gallons of medicine during the time she was ill, until I wrote to you and you told us what to do. She has taken eight bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and six of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She can do her own work now and can walk around again and is quite smart."

"You can publish this letter if you wish. We have received such benefit that we wish every sufferer could derive the same amount of good. My wife's complaint seemed to be a complication of diseases--the doctors said. We will ever remain your friends. May God bless you and your Institute."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

Call and have a set with the above improvements. Old loose and ill-fitting plates corrected in fit, durability and comfort perfectly true to nature.

LETTER FROM NEW YORK.
[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.]
New York, Aug. 16, 1902.

Your correspondent has at length recovered from his aversion to doing much writing this summer, and remembered that the old Gazette would possibly not object to a letter from his retreat.

Strange as it may appear to some, who have forgotten the fact that New York is really one of the most popular resorts for country folk, this retreat is now in that celebrated city between Central Park and the Hudson. His constant traveling companion considers that it is the most comfortable place found so far in our travels this summer. Two weeks were spent at Atlantic City before coming here, but as that unique and world-renowned seaside resort has been described by your correspondent before and is so well-known to your citizens it seems superfluous to say much about it.

Sousa and his band, which ought to have been one of the great attractions, had a very slim attendance at the superb concert given every afternoon and night. It is said that he is to receive $60,000 for the season which apparently must be a bargain for the owner of the old Auditorium pier. We have, however, heard since coming to New York, that Sousa himself desired to break the engagement shortly after going to Atlantic City, owing to the poor attendance, but the owner of the pier held him to it, probably looking forward to increased attendance in August and September.

Among the many attractions at Atlantic City, we considered this the very best, and found the music equal to the reputation of the band which scored such a great success in Europe. Another event at Atlantic City this summer was the sale of a valuable portion of the famous Humbert collection. Your readers will remember the denouement of this case in Paris a short time ago and the dismay of the creditors on finding that Humbert had escaped the meshes of the law. The articles of vertu and priceless antiques he had collected were put up for sale and a fine portion of them found their way to Atlantic City. Humbert, rascal as he is, is a man of excellent taste, as is shown by some of the most splendid Sevres vases and French majolica tables exquisitely inlaid, we have ever seen. There was especially a pair of superb Royal Sevres porcelain-painted Grecian shaped vases by Bertrand, the celebrated master, dated 1789. They were valued at $21,500 the pair. We looked and admired but refrained from bidding on these. There was also a fine plaque of the Napoleonic period with a dozen cups and saucers all of exquisite dark blue coloring, decorated on the outside with Napoleon's bees and on the inside with 22 carat gold. The plaque was also decorated with the famous bees. As we looked at it we thought of an intimate friend in Alexandria, but the prize was beyond our reach even for a gift.

But we must now stop describing the attractions found at Atlantic City other than the bathing, else this will be a letter from New York about Atlantic City. We must, however, refer to some of our country friends whose names have not yet so far appeared in the Gazette as visitors at that place while we were there. Their visit is now, of course, a matter of ancient history as times now go, but they might feel slighted if they did not appear in our first letter. They were Capt. David Mende and wife, Miss Isabella Randolph, Dr. Thomas Lewis, the venerable Mr. William Kennerly and Mr. Reardon, all of White Post, and Mrs. Hamilton Fletcher, of Rappahannock county. Their presence, not forgetting that of two others whom the etiquette of the Gazette does not permit us to mention, added much to our enjoyment, and we hope there may be a similar conjunction of visits another season.

Passing now to New York, a trip there seems so much of a common-place to business men and others, involving as it does the hurried rush of the present, that its great attractions, outside of business resorts and the centres of American and European travel, are apt to be overlooked. We do not know any place, where two or three weeks even in summer can be spent more pleasantly. Of course this is an exceptionally cool season, but there is always plenty of air stirring here except in the densely packed portions of the lower part of the city. Besides the parks and river and harbor trips give abundant opportunities for keeping cool on hot days.

Among the objects of interest visited by us the Metropolitan Museum of Art easily occupies a foremost place. It contains a large number of valuable paintings, masterpieces of old and modern times. A portion of the William H. Vanderbilt collection of modern paintings is now on exhibition loaned by Mr. George Vanderbilt for this year. It is the first time that this collection has been thrown open to the public. Among the finest of these we must mention Ros. Bonheur's "Old Menarch," representing an aged lion's head. This is a picture of remarkable strength and power. Besides this there is Sir John E. Millias's "Bride of Lammermoor," "Ernie Nicol's "Paying the Rent," an incident of Scottish life; "Gerome's "Swindler's Dance," Millet's famous "Sower," and Cabanel's exquisite "Pia de Tolomei." In the Catherine Lorillard Wolfe collection which was bequeathed by her to the museum is a very fine one by Sir Frederick Leighton called "Lachrymae." It is also one of his last. Munkacsy's "Death of Mozart," owned by General Russell Alger, is also on exhibition, and Kennedy's "Washington Crossing the Delaware," which is owned by the museum. To enumerate other equally fine paintings in such a collection as this would weary your readers. The best thing to do is to come and enjoy them for yourselves. We cannot, however, leave the museum without mentioning the wonderful Cenola collection of ancient pottery, which was made by that indefatigable explorer in the island of Cyprus some years ago. This alone is well worth several visits to the museum for careful examination and study.

The museum is beautifully situated in Central Park near Fifth avenue and in front of it stands the ancient Egyptian Obelisk moved by the Romans from Heliopolis and erected in Alexandria in B. C. 12, thence to the New World as a gift to this country from the Khedive some twenty-five years ago. It shows already the bad effects of this damp climate in the partial effacement of the old hieroglyphic inscriptions on three of its sides.

One morning we made a pilgrimage to Grant's tomb in company with a friend, a former resident of your city, who became a resident of New York two months ago, and whose companionship on some of our excursions has given us great pleasure. The tomb stands on a noble eminence above the Hudson. Around and past it for a long distance extends the Riverside Drive which is now prolonged northward by the completion of a noble viaduct over the Manhattan valley commencing near 130th street. The tomb is a fine square granite structure surrounded by a plaza with its entrance on the south side.

The approach from 125th street reminds one of a scramble over a rocky hill in Fairfax, the crooked pathway up being bordered here and there by well grown burdock plants. Within the tomb the roof arches form a Greek cross and far below their intersection, also below the main floor, rest two highly polished dark marble sarcophagi, one containing the remains of General Grant, the other, with the inscription, "Julia D. Grant," awaiting the day when she will repose by the side of her renowned husband. The sarcophagus of Grant was covered with flowers, so that we could not see the inscription thereon. The approach to the open crypt containing the sarcophagi is guarded by a chain in front of the steps leading down to them. The inside walls are of white marble and in the portico outside above the entrance are the words, "Let us have peace."

We were told that the tomb is to be further embellished with statuary. In a small room off the main chamber are a number of colors belonging to regiments that fought under Grant, some of them bearing the marks of hard service. Near the tomb on the north side are two trees which were planted in May 1897 by the late Earl Li Hung Chang to commemorate, as the inscription goes on to say, the greatness of General Grant. One tree only is mentioned on the inscription, as the two were planted to make sure of one living. Not far from the tomb is a small grave on the edge of the lofty bank with a simple monument on which is written, "Erected to the memory of an amiable child, St. Claire Pollock. Died 15th of July 1897 in the 5th year of his age." The tradition is that the child fell down the bank and was killed. Many of the visitors to the great tomb walk along the driveway a few paces to see the last resting place of the little child which has been held sacred so long and is now protected by an iron railing.

We must at length bring this letter to a conclusion as the fast multiplying pages remind us that, as there is an end to all things, there is an end to the valuable space afforded by the column of the Gazette.

We had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Wm. H. F. Lee of Ravensworth the other day. She has been visiting her son, Dr. Bolling Lee, of this city, and was then on her way to the old city of Quebec. S. W.

A Cure for Cholera Infantum.

"Last May," says Mrs. Curtis Baker, of Bookwiler, Ohio, "an infant child of our neighbors was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctor had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days the time the child had fully recovered and is now (nearly a year since) a vigorous, healthy girl. I have recommended this Remedy frequently and have never known it to fail in any single instance." For sale by Richard Gibson, Druggist.

His Sight Threatened.
"While picnicking last month my 11-year-old boy was poisoned by some weed or plant," says W. H. Dibble of Sioux City, Ia. "He rubbed the poison off his hands into his eyes and for a while we were afraid he would lose his sight. Finally a neighbor recommended DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. The first application helped him and in a few days he was as well as ever." For skin diseases, cuts, burns, scalds, wounds, insect bites, DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is sure cure. Relieves itching and itching. Beware of Counterfeits. For sale by E. S. Leubowitzer & Sons.

CIGARS AND TOBACCOES.

We Have Manufactured

Cigars since 1884 but at no time have we ever made a cigar to equal the "Captain Billy," which is made for men of taste, and equal to many cigars on the market. The Captain Billy is made of the finest imported and domestic tobaccos grown, being strictly hand made by experienced union workmen. The stock is old and well seasoned, being kept in our warehouse until well aged before it is manufactured into cigars. The Captain Billy is made in two shapes--Perfecto and No. 1--so you can take your choice. When the Captain Billy cigars are manufactured they are packed in Spanish cedar boxes and then put in an airtight room so they will gradually dry without losing their Havana aroma, before being offered to the trade. If you anti-pique taking a trip to the seashore it would be well for you to order the Captain Billy to carry with you as you can find no cigar to equal them. "Captain Billy," a 10c cigar for 5c.
